Description
The Department of Environmental Sciences, Informatics and Statistics at Università Ca’ Foscari Venezia in:

TITLE: Sustainability assessment of products and processes along their life cycle.

SSD: Environmental Chemistry and Chemistry for Cultural Heritage CHIM12

Tutor: Prof. Antonio Marcomini

Abstract: The research activity is aimed at the Life Cycle Assessment (LCA) of an innovative tanning agent developed within the LIFE GOAST project. The research study will compare the whole life cycle of the tanning process performed with the innovative tanning agent, in comparison with the process which uses chrome-based tanning agents. The comparative study will also assess economic aspects (Life Cycle Costing (LCC)) which will allow a comprehensive assessment of the sustainability of the innovative tanning agent.

The research may be carried out in English.
The fellowship is intended to provide the successful candidate with the opportunity to pursue his/her own research while benefiting from the range of expertise at Università Ca’ Foscari Venezia.
