Description
The Department of Asian and North African Studies at Università Ca’ Foscari Venezia invites applications for a fellowship in:

Title: Codicological study and assistance in the collation of Syriac manuscripts
Scientific sector: L-OR/07
Scientific supervisor and tutor: Prof. Emiliano Bronislaw Fiori
Duration: 12 months

Abstract: The ERC StG project FLOS aims to publish a digital edition of Syriac florilegia, with a specific focus on florilegia of speculative and dogmatic character, and to understand how the Greek patristic canon served the production of original ideas and the definition of confessional identities, following an allelopoietic approach. The candidate will make a codicological analysis of manuscripts used in the FLOS project for the critical edition of patristic florilegia in Syriac, in order to unravel the intended readership of these artifacts and their practical use. The work will be conducted on 6 Syriac manuscripts, produced between the 8th and the 10th century. At the end of the grant, she/he will be expected to produce a peer-reviewed publication in which she/he will present the results of her/his analysis. Occasionally, assistance with collations of material published in the project will be requested.

The fellowship is intended to provide the successful candidate with the opportunity to pursue his/her own research while benefiting from the range of expertise at Università Ca’ Foscari Venezia.

Who can apply
Prospective candidates are expected to hold a MA degree.
