The Department of Philosophy and Cultural Heritage of Ca' Foscari University of Venice, having regard the resolution n. 41 of the Consiglio di Dipartimento [Departmental Council] of the 19th of October 2023 that delegates the Director to issue calls for research fellowships, research grants and collaborations funded by external projects, once verified the needs and the budget of the projects together with the project coordinator; invites to submit applications for the awarding of no. 1 short fellowship title “Nature, Society, and Crime: The Roots of the Scientific School of Criminological Positivism”, lasting 12 months, within the project ERC “P-AGE - Social Defence. Uncovering the Transnational Epistemology of the Punitive Age”, CUP H73C24001970006, PI prof. Xenia Manuela Chiaramonte, and within the project “The Water City: The Political Epistemology of Hydrogeological Praxis (Amendment To the Collaboration Agreement on the establishment of a Max Planck Partner Group Rep. n. 275/2025 prot. n. 159157 of the 19/06/2025), CUP H75F2100077000, tutors of the short fellowship prof. Xenia Manuela Chiaramonte and prof. Pietro Daniel Omodeo.

The research fellow will carry out the following research activity:

The research will focus on analyzing how positivist criminology naturalized crime by inscribing it within the laws of nature and biology, while simultaneously reconfiguring punishment as a scientific and biological imperative aimed at social defense. Particular attention will be given to how the Scientific School of Criminology intertwined nature, society, and crime in order to establish a body of knowledge that appeared neutral, but was in fact deeply embedded in the power relations and political projects of its time.

The research will also highlight the epistemological contradictions inherent in this approach, showing how the claim to scientific objectivity often concealed normative and political choices. The findings will be presented in an academic article that, by combining historical reconstruction with tools from critical theory, aims to contribute to the history of science and to critical socio-legal studies, shedding light on the roots and ambiguities of the Scientific School of Criminology.

Moreover, the research fellow will provide support in conducting interviews and will produce a detailed report on the research activities and the main findings obtained.

The expected starting date is November 10th, 2025.

Each research fellowship amounts to Euro 19.367,00 gross percipient and will be subject to taxation according to current regulations. It will be paid in bimonthly instalments after certification of the regular performance of the activity.
