Project ID: Euro-MED0401165 Founded by the Programme Interreg Euro-MED - 4th Call for Thematic Projects CUP: H73C25000400006

- Title: Development and Simulation of Tourism Pressure Impact Scenarios in Mediterranean Contexts.
- start of the programme: The research programme envisages the start of the activity approximately in February 2026
- scientific coordinator and tutor: Prof. Nicola Camatti
- duration: 12 months;
- SSD: ECON-04/A; GSD: 13/ECON-04

abstract:

The research project aims to develop impact scenarios related to tourism pressure through an experimental and collaborative approach, with the objective of supporting the implementation and validation of the analytical tools developed within the TO CARE MED project. In particular, the project seeks to assess the applicability and usability of these tools in real and diverse contexts, represented by partner tourism destinations in the Mediterranean area (EURO-MED Programme).

The project objectives are to:

1. Determine tourism pressure impact scenarios through simulations based on the rates of consumption of tourism resources, in order to analyse carrying capacity dynamics and potential criticalities across different territorial contexts;
2. Develop questionnaires for tourism operators, aimed at the systematic collection of qualitative and quantitative data related to resource use, management practices, and the perception of tourism pressure;
3. Collect information on obstacles and vulnerabilities of tourism subsystems during Living Lab activities, actively involving local partners and stakeholders in a process of co-creation and validation;
4. Use mathematical software for the dynamic modelling of tourism pressure, integrating the collected data to support analysis, the development of predictive scenarios, and the definition of sustainable management strategies.

Experimental activities will include the preliminary analysis of selected case studies, the planning and coordination of the implementation of the tools (definition of indicators, timelines, and operational procedures), as well as data collection and analysis and the processing of feedback, leading to the preparation of evaluation reports to support the continuous refinement of the developed tools.

Stipend: The research fellowship amounts to 22.600,00=. Euros gross recipient and will be subject to taxation in accordance with the regulations in force.
