Title: Anthropological analysis of humans-wildlife coexistence in Trentino

Scientific area /field: M-DEA/01 (Demology, ethnology and anthropology)

Tutor: prof. Roberta Raffaetà

Duration: 12 months

Abstract: This research contract at the Department of Philosophy and Cultural Heritage is aimed at an anthropological analysis within a PRIN 2022 project 'WilDebate. Coexistences, Bio-cultural Frictions and Pastoralism in Protected Areas' which counts 3 units: University of Molise (lead partner), Ca' Foscari University of Venice, University of Turin. The anthropological analysis includes an ethnographic research and comparative analysis, building on the case study of interspecific cohabitations in Trentino between wildlife (particularly bears and wolves), other non-humans and humans. The main objective is mapping the complex field of local and super-local actors involved and bringing out the critical issues of coexistence in order to find shared, participatory and sustainable solutions. Ethnography will have a special focus around the debates and conflicts arising from the relationships between human communities and farmed biodiversity, domestic and wild species. Ethnography aims at the account of multiple positions in this multi-scale context. The researcher will work also on the communication and the organization of events concerning the PRIN project, along with the other 2 units.
