Description
The Department of Management of the Ca' Foscari University of Venice, on the basis of resolution taken by the Departmental Council on September 14th 2023 on the awarding of research grants for research fellows, hereby calls for applications for n. 1 Short Research Fellowship entitled "Start-up accelerators. An empirical study" lasting 8 months. The expected starting date is beginning of December 2023.

The research fellowship is awarded for the purpose of collaboration with the following research programme: "Start-up accelerators. An empirical study"

ABSTRACT

INTRODUCTION
In today's entrepreneurial landscape, startup accelerators have established themselves as a fundamental actor in the economic process of supporting and promoting innovation (Cohen, 2013; Cumming et al., 2019; Pauwels et al., 2016). However, academic research on this subject is still scarce and highly fragmented due to the lack of structured and large-scale data (Cohen and Hochberg, 2014). This research project aims to delve into the role of startup accelerators and innovation ecosystems in the growth path of young entrepreneurial enterprises (Del Sarto et al., 2020; Gonzalez-Uribe and Leatherbee, 2018; Hallen et al., 2016). Leveraging data collected within an accelerator ecosystem, the primary objective of the research is to highlight the contribution of the acceleration program to the performance of businesses and the path of funding they pursue. The study also aims to investigate the intricate dynamics and interactions that develop between accelerators and other investors in today's entrepreneurial ecosystem—partner companies, business angels, venture capital funds, crowdfunding platforms, and financial institutions—defining potential implications for the involved startups (Bellavitis et al., 2017; Block et al., 2018; Cumming et al., 2019). In doing so, the research aims to contribute to the limited literature on the subject and provide new perspectives that can guide future research.

OBJECTIVES
The research project aims to achieve the following objectives:
- Analyze the characteristics of startups involved in the acceleration process offered by a specific accelerator for startup growth, e.g., size, sectors of activity, stage of development, growth objectives, entry timing into the accelerator.
- Investigate the contribution of the accelerator ecosystem to startup growth, e.g., services offered to entrepreneurs, provided resources, training programs, networking events, incubation periods.
- Measure the impact of the acceleration program offered by the accelerator on the performance of involved businesses, e.g., survival rate, growth rate, attraction of external funding.
- Identify interactions of the accelerator ecosystem with other investors or actors in the entrepreneurial landscape, e.g., types and frequency of interactions, implications for startups in terms of funding opportunities and growth strategies.

EXPECTED RESULTS
The research aims to define the contribution of the studied accelerator ecosystem to supporting entrepreneurship and identify its connection to the surrounding socio-economic environment. The study also aims to shed light on the initial stages of a startup's growth process, an area of research typically overlooked due to data limitations. It is indeed plausible to believe that a startup can gain immense advantages from entering an acceleration program. Through the network of relationships and synergies developed by the accelerator with other actors in the entrepreneurial landscape, a startup can optimize its growth path, acquire capital more easily, and reduce the so-called time-to-market, i.e., the time between the conception of a product or service and its commercialization.

The scientific responsible and tutor of the short research fellowship is prof.ssa Elisa Cavezzali. The research fellow must provide the department with the following research output:
- two-monthly reports on the activities (tot. 4 reports).

The amount, granted in one single instalment at the end of the Short Research Fellowship, shall only be approved and awarded for whole months completed; amounts for months not completed shall not be awarded.
