Description

The Venice School of Management - Ca' Foscari University of Venice, as specified in the introduction, hereby calls for applications for no. 1 Short-term Research Fellowship entitled "Business Organization and Labor Transformations", lasting 3 months – CUP H73C26001200007 – Tutor prof. Gaetano Zilio Grandi.

The research fellow must perform the following research:

ABSTRACT

From a labor law and industrial relations perspective, this research addresses the transformations of corporate organizational models and the evolution of labor protection systems in contemporary productive environments. The inquiry will focus in particular on the employment and organizational aspects associated with innovative organizational forms, whether represented by corporate scale-up/consolidation processes, business networks (including those in the social enterprise and non-profit sectors), social activities, or sustainable and/or circular economy-oriented organizations. The research aims to provide a systematic framework of current transformations in the world of work driven by multiple factors (digital transition, green transition, demographic shifts, economic drivers) that can be tailored to specific application contexts. In doing so, it will examine labor law tools that enable enterprises to enhance competitiveness or maintain compliance with social and environmental sustainability standards. The outputs of this research intend to offer a qualified analytical contribution with practical value and relevant impact for stakeholders, as well as economic and professional entities within the Venetian territory.

OBJECTIVES

The research activity aims, first, to outline a systematic framework concerning the evolution of protections in contemporary productive settings. To achieve this initial goal, the research fellow will draw upon both organizational/economic and labor law literature to build a broad and interdisciplinary reference framework.
Subsequently, the investigation will focus on analyzing employment issues tied to specific innovative organizational forms, which may be examined either alternatively or in combination: from corporate scale-up and consolidation processes, to business networks and social enterprises, through to organizations oriented toward sustainability and the circular economy. The subject of study will thus encompass both statutory and bargained mechanisms for worker protection and flexibility (such as managing job duty modifications, working time, and occupational health and safety in flexible environments). In this second phase, the fellow will examine primary legislation alongside national, company-level, and/or territorial collective bargaining, with potential deep-dives into second-level practices, bilateral institutions, and contractual clauses dedicated to welfare and sustainability.
Finally, the research seeks to calibrate this general theoretical and regulatory framework for application in specific operational contexts, extracting analytical insights, reflections, and key interpretations directly usable by the economic and professional organizations of the Venetian territory.

EXPECTED RESULTS

The primary outcome of the research project will be an analytical research report systematically mapping the interactions between evolving labor regulations, collective bargaining dynamics, and new corporate organizational structures. This study will examine one or more of the selected organizational models, highlighting their respective protection and flexibility profiles.
The report must include an annotated bibliography and an initial mapping of relevant bargaining practices.
Lastly, the research may enable the preparation of summary materials and briefing documents (such as concise factsheets or executive summaries), if deemed useful to support future dissemination initiatives and/or engagement with professional associations and local stakeholders.

The research fellow must provide the School with the following research output:

- two-monthly reports on the activities (Tot. 2 reports);
- a final report on the activities undertaken, highlighting the results achieved, approved by the tutor, which will be presented to the Board/ Council of the School.

This documentation is by way of example and not exhaustive and may change or be implemented according to the needs of the research activity concerning the project and/or the structure that calls for the research grant. For anything not specified in this Call, please refer to the Regulations and applicable legislation.

Duration of the Short-term Research Fellowship: 3 (three) months, indicatively starting in February 2027.

Amount: The amount of the Short-term Research Fellowship is equal to € 5.115,21 (five thousand one hundred and fifteen/21 euros) gross percipient and will be subject to taxation according to the regulations in force. It will be paid in bimonthly instalments, after certification of the regular performance of the activity. The amount awarded is understood to include any costs relating to the undertaking of the research envisaged by the project.
